REPUBLICAN MASS MEETING AT ADRIAN, MICH.

Special Dispatch to The Chicago Tribune.

ADRIAN, Mich., Sept. 29.

Adrian never saw such a crowd in her streets as has filled them to-day on the occasion of the Republican mass meeting. Early this morning the people from the surrounding country began to appear in their wagons, and, long before the time for the regular meeting, the streets were filled with a dense throng. Almost all the delegates from the various counties in the district, the members of the Grand Marshal, Wilson and his aids, formed in procession, and, headed by the Adrian Band, marched through the principal streets, and then to the fair grounds, the scene of the County Agricultural Society. Every town in the county was represented by a large delegation, and by turning out in such force the agricultural friends of old Lenawee testified their adherence to the Republican faith, and their enthusiasm for the glorious candidates of that party.

At two o'clock in the afternoon the crowd convened to the fair grounds were addressed by Hon. Zach. Chandler, Hon. Sam Galloway, of Ohio, and Gen. Custer, of Michigan. The crowd addressed by these speakers was variously estimated at from 15,000 to 20,000. It was one of the largest or most enthusiastic gatherings ever held in this State. All of the speakers made eloquent speeches, and continued to catch the cheers which animated their hearers. Addresses were made from two stands, and at the conclusion of the speech of Hon. Sam Galloway from the main stand, Hon. H. H. Belvin, of Adrian, the Governor, addressed the people.

In the evening there was a magnificent torchlight procession, 1,000 lanterns being in evidence. Fireworks, a display of transparencies, bonfires, &c., made the city appear like fairy land. The streets were filled with people. Although the procession was a long one, the State. All of the speakers made eloquent speeches, and continued to catch the cheers which animated their hearers. REV. H. N. BISHOP.

Funeral Obsequies of the Late Rector of St. John's Parish.

A Large Concourse of Mourners in Attendance.

Commemorative Services by the Episcopal Clergy of Chicago.

A Beautiful and Touching Sermon by Bishop Clarkson, of Nebraska.

Exercises at the Grave.

The obsequies of Rev. H. N. Bishop, D.D., late rector of St. John's Protestant Episcopal Church, corner of Lake street and St. John's place, were solemnized in the church, yesterday afternoon, in the presence of an immense concourse of people, the majority of whom were members of other congregations. The pews were all occupied, and the available standing room taken possession of long before the hour announced for the opening exercises—1 o'clock. It was reported that the Chattanooga party would be present, and the ceremonies were delayed until 1 o'clock, in order to afford them an opportunity to participate, but the party did not arrive. The point on which their hopes delighted being delayed by some unfortunate circumstance. The floor of the church was densely crowded. In a tasteful manner with black crape, interspersed with white. The walls, pillars and chancel were also draped with the same material. On the wall, back of the chancel, was a representation of the setting sun, in black, surrounding a very large cross, also draped in white crape, and evergreens. There, in conspicuous with the pulpit, was placed the body, in a casket of rich design, covered with flowers.

THE SERVICES OF THE MORNING.

At precisely two o'clock the procession, headed by Rev. C. R. Hemenway, and followed by several members of the congregation, entered the church. At the head of the procession was the casket, borne by the pall-bearers, and on the casket was placed a large cross of flowers. Following the casket came the clergymen took their places in the chancel, and the officiating clergymen took their places on the south side of the chancel, and the congregation on the north side.

Rev. W. E. Cooper, of Lockport, Ill., then read a lesson taken from the fifteenth chapter of the first Epistle of St. Paul to the Corinthians, beginning with the 12th verse, "Now if Christ be preached that he rose from the dead," and ending with the 20th verse, "But now is Christ risen from the dead, and become the first fruits of them that slept."

At the conclusion of the reading of the lesson, the hymn, "Nearer, my God, to Thee," was sung.

Right Rev. Robert Clarkson, of the Diocese of Nebraska, then delivered the following touching address, which was listened to throughout with deep attention, and frequent allusions were made in their behalf to the sorrowful occasion which had called them together:

ADDRESS OF RT. REV. CLARKSON.

Nothing but the overwhelming power of overwhelming grief could so far overcome the natural reserve of the human heart, as to cause us to assemble here this day. Nothing but the fearful sickness of a common sorrow could have brought together this vast multitude from all parts of this great city. And nothing but the sudden stroke of many a year. And nothing but the sudden stroke of death, could have moved the lips of the speaker to give expression to the feelings of the heart, in the presence of this our loss, and of your loss, in the sudden translation to glory of that dear friend, pastor, guide, and loving soul. Few and simple, therefore, must be my words to-day. Few and simple, therefore, must be those of the preacher of a proper consolation. Not in the multiplication of words, not in the ornamental story of his laborious and useful life, and of his sudden departure, not in the most markedly brilliant and successful of earthly memorials, can we find the true consolation for the loss of a dear and true affection. Our friendship began with the first days of my own home, and it has grown with the growth of my own house, as it has grown with the growth of your church. Our friendship began with the first days of my own home, and it has been one of the first hours of our acquaintance, and we have had the first hours of our acquaintance, and we have had the love and confidence of each other's hearts. We have had no reckoning and have proclaim that attainment and the love of each other's hearts. We have had no reckoning and have proclaim that attainment and the love of each other's hearts. We have had no reckoning and have proclaim that attainment and the love

OUR PUBLIC SCHOOLS.

Regular Meeting of the Board of Education.

Several New Schools Recommended by the Building Committee.

Granting of Certificates—Appointments and Resignations.

Changes in Music Books—The Evening and High Schools.

Condition of the Day Schools.

A regular meeting of the Board of Education was held last night, Mr. Rousseau in the chair. Present—Inspectors Avery, Bond, Bosdell, Briggs, Carter, Guilford, King, Meserve, Runyan and Tinkham.

NEW SCHOOL BUILDINGS.

Inspector Carter, from the Committee on Buildings and Grounds, submitted the following report:

Your committee, having had under consideration the matter of further school accommodation in the Dore and Foster Districts, report that the Common Council, having made arrangements for the purchase of a lot in the rear of the Dore School Building, we recommend that an eight room primary school building be erected on the lot as soon as possible, and that they be authorized to advertise for proposals for constructing the same.

Your committee would further report that the Common Council have under consideration the purchase of the lot, recommended by the board, on Mitchell street, and, in case they should not act in time for building this year, we recommend that the Council be requested to advertise for proposals for the same.

Your committee would further state that several architects are preparing plans for buildings to be erected on the lot on Foster street, the east on Third avenue, now Twelfth street, but these plans are not yet fully completed, and we are not prepared to make a recommendation, but ask further time.

The committee have had under consideration the order offered by Inspector Hinkham, concerning the school on Larrabee street, but are not prepared to report finally on the matter at present.

The Franklin and Clarke buildings are progressing, and it is hoped will be ready for occupancy some time in December.

The report was accepted and the recommendation in the first clause adopted.

Inspector Briggs, from the committee on Course of Study, reported the adoption of the second, third, fourth and fifth books of the Eclectic series of penmanship, and the publication of the first, the last publication to be made when the set in question should be a complete system.

The rules and rates were called for, and being taken, resulted—rose, 51; nays, 3—as follows:

Yeas—Messrs. Avery, Bond, Briggs, Carter, Guilford, King, Meserve, Tinkham and the President—8.

So the amendment was not adopted.

The recommendation of the committee was then accepted—yeas, 10; nays, 1—Mr. Avery.

The committee was granted further time to report on the other matters referred to them.

SCHOOL FURNITURE.

Inspector Briggs, from the committee on Expenses and Furniture, reported that it was expected that the Franklin and Hancock would be ready to open in December, and recommended that the committee on Course of Study ask for proposals for furnishing the full amounts of furniture needed for these buildings.

The report was accepted and adopted and the committee directed to report action to the board.

CERTIFICATES GRANTED.

Inspector Briggs, from the committee on Examination of teachers, reported that it was expected that the Franklin and Hancock would be ready to open in December, and recommended that this
